

Standards of Quality

NAEYC accreditation is a national recognition of your program's achievement and continued commitment in providing high-quality early childhood care and learning. By providing a shared understanding and commitment to research-based quality standards for the past 30 years, NAEYC has established a professional benchmark that supports families and their young children, and the professionals who work with young children.

Hawai'i understands the direct correlation between high-quality early care and learning, and positive long-term outcomes in a child's life. Hawai'i also recognizes that every dollar spent on early childhood programs returns $4 to $16 on that investment. Hawai'i's Act 46 (2020) supports early childhood programs in their accreditation efforts. HECAP provides the technical assistance to get you there.

HECAP Advantage

Technical Assistance

The Hawai'i Early Childhood Accreditation Program (HECAP) nurtures early childhood programs striving to offer Hawai'i's children quality learning experiences through developmentally appropriate practices. We have been running our HECAP program for over 20 years. We know a thing or two about accreditation.

Supporting Leadership

The HECAP staff is on-hand to offer support, guidance, assistance, and the latest information on both local and national accreditation issues. We support our early childhood care and learning providers, and bring providers together to share experiences, identify critical issues, and raise the voices of early childhood professionals to effect positive change.
